Overview

Andrew B. Cohen is a Partner at Hill Wallack LLP. He is an experienced litigator whose practice focuses on complex civil and commercial litigation, with particular depth in construction law, commercial disputes, and real estate-related litigation.

Andrew represents clients in a wide range of matters involving contract disputes, construction liens, change order disputes, commercial collections, employee theft claims, and personal injury litigation. He regularly counsels businesses, property owners, and industry professionals in high-stakes disputes and provides practical, strategic guidance designed to resolve matters efficiently while protecting long-term business interests.

A substantial portion of Andrew's practice involves construction and development-related litigation. He represents real estate developers, general contractors, subcontractors, suppliers, and lenders in disputes arising from construction projects, including claims involving delays, payment issues, scope changes, and performance obligations. His experience allows him to navigate the legal, financial, and operational complexities that often accompany construction matters.

Andrew has appeared in state and federal courts throughout New Jersey and has extensive trial and appellate experience. He previously served as Special Litigation Counsel to Harrison Township in Gloucester County, where he successfully defended claims at both the trial and appellate levels, resulting in significant cost savings to the municipality. During his tenure, he also successfully pursued bond claims against sureties, enabling completion of unfinished site improvements within a major subdivision.

In addition to his construction and commercial litigation practice, Andrew represents a diverse client base that includes real estate developers, financial institutions, suppliers, national equipment rental companies, casinos, and businesses across a variety of industries. His practical approach and litigation experience allow him to deliver focused, results-driven representation tailored to each client's objectives.

Andrew received his law degree from Temple University School of Law and is admitted to practice in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.
